JAPANESE AWARD EXTENDS TO ARBOLEDA'S REDS

Once again, Arboleda wines have received important recognition in the Sakura Japan Women's Wine Awards, whose 2015 version declared the Arboleda Chardonnay the "Best Wine to Pair with Sushi". Now in 2017, the fourth edition of the competition has granted gold medals to the same wine as well as to its other emblematic variety, the Cabernet Sauvignon—both from the 2015 vintage—proving that the Japanese palate also favours Arboleda's reds.

The Sakura Japan Women's Wine Awards is the country's largest international wine and food competition. More than 4,000 wines from nearly 40 countries took part in the event judged—as the name implies—by the most renowned female wine experts in the country.

"At Arboleda we search for identity and purity. In order to achieve that this year, the key will be to identify the optimal moment of harvest for each lot of grapes to best preserve freshness in the fruit and avoid high alcohol levels. I think this will be a year of very concentrated and well-structured wines."
